Rick's Remarks

More new cars will be produced that give instant readouts of gas mileage. A gauge will show the MPG at any given second.

What if we could see a gauge that showed how many days we had to live? Each day it would tick down by one.

Perhaps an "in-your-face mortality check" would help us to be motivated to try and make our lives count for more than they do at present.

Sometime on the way to work I see just how many miles I can squeeze out of a tank. I think I'll try the same with my life.
